Food safety is a critical public health issue and has gained significant prominence following the enactment of the Food Safety and Standards Act, 2006, which came into effect in 2011. With the implementation of this Act, there is now a pressing need for professionals trained in developing and enforcing science-based food safety standards and systems, including aligning them with international benchmarks.

This growing need has led to a surge in demand for qualified food safety and quality professionals in fields such as food processing, food testing, safety regulation, auditing, risk assessment, capacity building, and policy implementation. In response, IGNOU launched the M.Sc. in Food Safety and Quality Management (MSCFSQM) to address the increasing human resource requirements across the agriculture and food sectors.

Special Features of the Programme

A standout feature of MSCFSQM is its modular structure:

Learners who successfully complete the first year have the option to exit the programme with a Post Graduate Diploma in Food Safety and Quality Management (PGDFSQM).

Those who already hold the PGDFSQM diploma can gain lateral entry into the second year of the M.Sc. programme, allowing them to complete the full degree in a phased and flexible manner.

Objectives of the Programme

The MSCFSQM programme is designed with the following goals:

To develop qualified professionals equipped to work in regulatory agencies, the food industry, academic and research institutions, certification and accreditation bodies, testing laboratories, and food trade and training sectors.

a) To provide comprehensive knowledge in areas such as:

- Food safety standards
- Harmonization with global benchmarks
- Quality management systems
- Food analysis and instrumentation
- Risk analysis and management
- Traceability and auditing

b) To foster a disciplined and positive food safety culture among professionals in the field.

c) To encourage research on emerging food safety issues and contribute to the creation of science-based regulatory frameworks.

Medium of Instruction

The programme is offered entirely in English. All course materials, assessments, and examinations will be in English.

Duration of the Programme

The MSCFSQM programme offers flexibility in duration:

- Minimum Duration: 2 years
- Maximum Duration: 4 years

This timeframe accommodates the diverse needs of working professionals and learners from different backgrounds.

MSCFSQM Programme Structure
